Umbria is one of the Italian regions with the largest number of traditional food and wine products. Despite a small area, the region is in fact very rich in traditions and places that represent an unmissable attraction for lovers of food and wine tourism and good taste. For those who love to taste, immerse themselves in the atmosphere of tradition and of good food, always in search of authentic local "typicality", Umbria is the perfect place.

WINE TASTINGS

During the wine-tasting sessions you will be guided by our professional sommeliers on a tour of Umbrian and other Italian wines, tasting prestigious labels and great vintages.

Each glass will be thoughtfully paired with locally produced appetizers to enhance flavour notes and delight your palate. Thanks to the guided tastings, you will explore the varied flavours of different regional grapes and you will savour and learn to identify a wine, its age and characteristics by using your nose and taste buds.

UMBRIAN DINNERS

You will taste the Umbrian cuisine, whose roots lie in the civilization of the Umbrians and Romans is based on a long tradition, with dishes not always humble or popular, but with frequent use of legumes and cereals. Little influenced by the nearby regions, it is based essentially on meat and products of the earth, which are used both in large occasions and in the daily meal. It is a simple kitchen, with processes generally not too elaborate, which clearly enhance the flavors of the raw ingredients.
