Golf Club Villa Condulmer

The golf course is the centerpiece of 60 hectares of natural environment

Built in two different eras, this 18-hole par 71 course is 5900 meters long. The first nine holes, designed by John Harris, unwind through the age-old flora of Villa Condulmer's 18th-century park. The second nine holes, designed by Marco Croze, are longer than the first.

The greens are fast and well defended by strategically placed bunkers; the layout of the course is flat and not difficult. Water is present in half of the holes.

The Club has completely renovated the Championship Course, reseeding its 18 holes with the Bermuda Grass. The famous "Bermuda Grass," capable of absorbing rainwater as no other variety of grass can, was planted on the second nine holes in the Summer of 2015, and in May 2016, the planting was completed on the first nine holes. Now the Course is perfectly playable all year round, regardless of weather.

Before you take on the course it would be wise to carefully study where hazards and obstacles are located. You have to drive long but at the same time be precise, as many holes are flanked by out of bounds, while others have greens that are well-defended by a series of obstacles that require an absolutely perfect approach shot.

Circolo Golf Venezia - The Venice golf course

A piece of history in the Italian golf

The Venetian Golf Club can rightfully claim the title of eldest club in the region and among the oldest ones in Italy. Its foundation and opening date as far back as 1928 and 1930, respectively, with an entire week of competitions and celebrations organized by its first 25 members belonging to the noble families of the Venetian aristocracy.

Under the lead of Scottish architect Cruikshank of Maxwell M. Hart of Glasgow, the works begun in 1928, around an old Austrian fortification built for the defense of Venice, army quarters and horse stables – that make up the skeleton of today's Club House. The architect designed the first 9 holes, finally providing Venice with an intriguing PAR 35 course.

Hall of fame of international golf

Champions such as Arnold Palmer, Tony Jacklin, Severiano Ballesteros, Johnny Miller, Sam Torrance, Lee Trevino, Costantino Rocca, Baldovino Dassù, Eamonn Darcy, and more recently, Edoardo and Francesco Molinari and Matteo Manassero, have stepped the Lido's links. The charm of the Venetian course lies in the perfect alliance between natural beauties and technical difficulties that make it one of the best courses in Italy. In 2012, it ranked at the eighth position of the special "Top Ten" chart of the best Italian courses drawn each year by Golf Digest.

Ca' della Nave Golf Club

The first of the three golf courses designed in Italy in the late 80s by the famous US Golf Champion Arnold Palmer, well-known designer of golf courses in the world, inspired by the nearby Venice spreading the 27 holes of water obstacles.

Arnold Palmer created a top-level course, both in the technical and aesthetic result, giving birth to an 18-hole "champion" par 72 of 6350 meters and to an "executive" of 9 holes.

The large bunkers scattered along the fairways and in defense of large and fast greens, are harmoniously inserted between the vegetation and the water in the wide horizons of a technical and suggestive path.

Peculiarity of the field is given by the abundance of water obstacles created with artificial lakes that affect as many as 12 of the 18 holes, the consistent presence of large bunkers American, from the technical aspects and the pleasantness of the surrounding landscape that count it among the best competition fields made in Italy.

Hotel Villa Condulmer Golf Resort

Villa Condulmer, located in the Treviso countryside adjacent to Venice, is a Venetian Villa whose exact origin date remains uncertain. According to Mazzotti it was built on the seventeenth-Century; according to Venturini first works started in 1743 on commission of the Venetian patrician Alvise Condulmer.

Authoritative sources assert that the Villa was built on the ruins of an ancient monastery, attributed to the sixteenth Century, and whose vestiges refer to the barchessa orthogonal to the main house.

According to the dictates of the eighteenth-Century, which see the most magnificent examples of villa, it is the main representative space to be privileged, with the stately building preceded by the garden in axial configuration.

The ground floor is slightly raised, with the four steps leading to the entrance, beyond which the visitor is greeted by the large passing hall, the fulcrum of the building. The flooring is on the Venetian terrazzo; walls and ceiling are adorned with fine stuccos.

Also in the hall (the ancient living room), you can admire 4 frescoes in bucolic theme, made around the half of the 19th. Century by the painter Eugenio Moretti Larese. In particular, the second on the right, portrays the then owner of the Villa, Count Giovan Battista Torielli, together with his friend Giuseppe Verdi. The composer at the invitation of the count, stayed in the Villa from March 1853, to relax after the much criticized first play of "La Traviata".

Verona and its wines : from Bardolino to Valpolicella

Just like for art and landscapes, Italy has a lot to present. Verona is certainly the most representative Italian wine city, partly because for over 50 years it hosts the international fair of Italian wines and especially to be the Italian representative at Great Wine Capitals, the event that brings together the most representative capitals in the world of wine. In short, for those who love wine Verona is a must and for this reason we have included it among the activities for our guests.

Itinerary

The excursion starts in the town of Bardolino, on the hills east of Lake Garda, with the tasting of local wines and EVO oil. The visit will take place in one of the most famous wineries and active for years in the hospitality of wine lovers from all over the world.

In the afternoon we will visit the city of Verona on a classic tour, accompanied by a local expert guide of history. The tour will be in English.

Late in the afternoon, we move to one of the most beloved wine areas in the world. We visit a winery in the Valpolicella doc, and we pair our dinner with the local wines. Because the best way to enjoy Italian wines is by pairing them with local food, and we want our guests to enjoy cuisine and wine the way we do.

Food and Wine experience

Valpolicella region does not need presentation. Its wines are known worldwide. And Amarone della Valpolicella plays the role of the king in the wide range of Italian wines.

Our local sommelier will take you to visit a selected winery and explore the sensations that the wines reveal according to the cru, the blend, and the vintage. Each wine is paired with locally produced appetizers to enhance flavor notes and delight your palate.

Thanks to the guided tastings, you will explore the varied flavors of different wines and be impressed by wines' peculiarities and styles, even within a limited distance. Italy offers very different landscapes, climates, and wines in a single region. You might be surprised by the incredible variety you can enjoy

A meal with pairing

For centuries wine has been the unique beverage in south Europe, besides water. Pairing food and wine is the essential of eno-gastronomy in Italy. Veneto region displays different territories: mountains, sea, lakes, many rivers. Any kind of food is to find there. Also, seasons play a huge role in the food you may find on your plates. And the wines you can pair to those plates are another unmissable offer! Still, white wines, slightly aromatic bubbles, important red wines find their best pairings with pasta, vegetables, fish, and meat.

Not to forget the peculiar dessert wines such as Recioto della Valpolicella which is supposed to be the ancestor of Amarone, when dry wines were not in vogue. Enjoy!
